Wall Street Journal Article Highlights Cyber-Crime Epidemic in Our Schools

A cyber consultant calls it a real nightmare. Our schools are being attacked and don't have the resources to fight back. What can the school do to protect themselves from cyber thieves? According to a Wall Street Journal article posted on ProgramBusiness.com, the facts indicate no matter how much you spend you will never be close to having full protection. The criminals will always find new ways to penetrate your computer network. Click here to read the article.

Purchasing cyber liability insurance is a simple and cost effective method of providing protection in the event of a cyber attack. Wright Specialty Insurance has developed a program specifically designed for schools, offering coverage for a wide range of cyber-attacks and subsequent suits that may follow.

A short 5 question application is all it takes to obtain an indication. The policy is written on Lloyd's paper via CFC Underwriting. Premiums start at $1,000 with low deductibles.

Protect your school from the cost and expense of a cyber-attack with our cyber liability program. Click here for our application, coverage highlights, and policy form.
